South Auburn wants a saddle and harness shop.

Dr. West is fixing up the Maxwell house for a residence and will stay with us.

New Goods—Fall Styles of Hats at Mrs. Miller's Millinery store, South Auburn. Low Prices.

Hanlan has issued challenges to Courtney, Ross and Lee, to row three miles for $2,500 a side.

Charlie Browning, one of the Brownville "Bricks," was in town last Monday and took dinner at the Holdrege.

Jeff. Roberts, a farmer near Harrisburg, Ky., during a quarrel over an old feud, was shot and killed by Samuel Ball.

Miss Clara Mercer, of Brownville, and Miss Aggie Abbey, of Falls City, were in the city last week visiting with Mrs. Florence Cross.

Mrs. Susan Walsh, mother of our townsman, A. V., arrived from Cleveland, Ohio, last week, and is visiting with children at Humboldt.

The Republican ticket nominated in Gage county is: For state senator, Elijah Filley; for representatives in the lower house, Cassell, Morrison, Fuller.

Walter Tyrrell, as soon as discharged from the penitentiary, was taken charge of by the sheriff of Dawson county for burglarly committed in Plum Creek. Tyrrell will probably get another term in the pen.

"Union is Strength."

It is related that Baron Rothschild upon his death bed called around him his children and giving one of them a single stick requested him to break it, which was easily done; then handing him a bundle containing several of the same size, made the same request which his son failed to have strength sufficient to break. Using the example he taught them the truth: "Union is strength," and to-day as an outcome of that incident, that family rules continental Europe, by means of its vast wealth. Now in our new town, which is physically divided; for you may call two boys John, as far as the name goes they are one, but they are separate and distinct and no amount of calling them one will make them one. We are and will always be two separate centers of trade and a certain amount of rivalry will exist as certainly, as between two men of the same business in the same town. Each will try to excel. There are things in which the two towns can unite to their mutual profit; but if everything that comes up must be viewed by jealous eyes, and in a jealous spirit, then these two towns never will be able to do anything for themselves or the county that will induce the people of the county to think well of them. Again in our own end of the town we must work and pull together. If one business man won't take hold of some project that another has proposed simply because he is a rival in the in trade; then he cuts his own throat. Some one must originate, start and move new enterprises to bring people to this place to find amusement and profit, or else they will stay away. If you try one plan to get up a crowd and no one helps you it gives you a cold bath and you feel like retaliation should some one else make a similar effort, and when he fails then you say "good, perhaps he will see how it is to be left alone." Now both of you were working for the same end, and if it was reached would be of a mutual benefit, so both lost it because each stood on his own dignity. I say we want to stand by each other. Say a good word when you can. Do you think it makes a favorable impression if a person comes into your place of business and in order to sell goods you turn in and berate a competitor in your line of trade? No, he thinks you are selfish and do not tell the truth, so he grows to have a dislike to you. Let's suppose a little. Suppose both towns were united in one—in fact, had the junction in the midst, would we not have been twice our present size? Why, simply because people would see we were united. Now even in each end of town there can be a feeling of "every man for himself," that will make every business man stand alone. Which plan is calculated to bring the most success? A good feeling, mutual interests; shoulder to shoulder; you help me and I'll help you; simultaneous efforts to draw trade and the farmers to our town in all possible ways; or a jealous feeling; every man for himself, you kick me and I'll return it, constant growing at the success of others, spreading slander, advising men to sell or buy elsewhere when outside of your line, etc. Each plan will reap a harvest. A good town where it is a pleasure to trade, or the deserted village that all pass by.

North Auburn News.

If you can't spare us a place in your paper please give us a corner in the waste-basket.

North Auburn is still looming and the prospects for the future are of the most flattering nature. Several new buildings have been commenced within the past few days, and more are talked of.

The new barber shop with Messrs. G. A. Webb and Chas. Stevens as managers, is now under full motion. A bath room is also in connection with the establishment, and hot and cold baths can be had at any time.

Work on the "Talmage" is progressing rapidly. Messrs. Baird and Crandall have the contract and Kerns furnishes the lumber.

A car load of fine wagons arrived at the implement establishment of David Campbell last week. Mr. Campbell disposes of a great many wagons and is well pleased with having moved to Auburn.

Mr. Chas. D. Nixon, of New York president of the Bank of Auburn, arrived in town last week.

Mr. Moore, of Chicago, is in town the guest of P. P. Starin, of the Bank of Auburn.

Miss Dora Skillman is one of our school teachers for the coming term of school. She is away at present, visiting friends in Iowa.

We are sorry to hear of the painful accident which occurred to Mrs. Thos. Kearns, formerly Miss May Crandall of this place. She was thrown from a wagon recently while coming to town, thereby causing a fracture of her collar bone. The injury however is nothing serious and we hope ere long to see her out again.

Masters Paul and Walter Gilmore entered the Normal school at Peru as students last week, and will remain in the institution until next June.

Mr. W. A. Eberly spent part of last week in St. Joseph taking in the exposition.

Charlie White is now engaged as a mechanic on the Talmage. Charlie is a natural genius and can turn his hand to almost any kind of work.

Mr. Thos. Coggins, of Lincoln, is the new clerk in Mr. Kerns' lumber yard. J. J. Cobry goes to South Auburn for a few weeks.

Peaches and grapes are being brought to town in large quantities every day. Mr. John Maley will have 1,000 bushels of peaches this year. Mr. Maley owns one of the finest orchards in the county.

Would the two young ladies who were in town lately inquiring for the "whereabouts" of a certain person, be kind enough to report as to whether their search was successful?

Mr. A. H. Gilmore, a prominent merchant of this place, is having his store building painted.

Little Birdie Webb, who it will be remembered was hurt some time ago is improving rapidly under the skillful treatment of Dr. Glasgow, the popular physician of North Auburn.

Charlie Waite, the good-looking money dealer of Wall street, still makes an occasional trip to Brownville for what purpose it does not belong here to investigate.

Mr. R. O. Fellows, of the Post, made a trip to Nebraska City last week. His niece, Miss Edna Wells, returned with him and is still in the city.

Miss Hattie Mutz, one of North Auburn's charming girls was in Peru lately.

Now that the weather has become somewhat cooler and the evening longer, we might soon expect to hear from the poets. Any one whose taste runs in the direction of poetry can find plenty of subjects. Charlie Snow can't you give us a selection?

VINCIT O. VERITAS.

Some of the papers are complaining that Jay Gould controls $120,000,000 worth of property in Missouri, and they think something ought to be done to take such an enormous interest out of the hands of one man. That there is great danger in the concentration of wealth and in the growth of monopolies there is not the slightest doubt, but Mr. Gould should receive credit for using that $120,000,000 to develop the material interests of the state, and add to the wealth of the country at large. He furnishes employment to 42,000 men in the State of Missouri alone, and that one fact goes far to redeem him, when his policy of keeping his money going is compared with that of Mr. Vanderbilt, who has nearly an equal amount locked up in government bonds. If Jay Gould may be a very bad man, and a dangerous man, he is doing a great deal to develop the country.—Inter Ocean.

We always begin to have faith in the teachings of a great man who is willing to acknowledge that he "don't know." The wisest men are those who do know that there are great mysteries all about them, which the human mind cannot fathom. This is true of the spiritual as well as the material universe. Both Christian instructors and scientists would have suffered less humiliation and accomplished more good if they had always accepted this truth, and said "we don't know."—Inter Ocean.

A Kentucky man's idea of a gentleman is seen in the following colloquy: "Yes," he said, "Judge — is very much of a gentleman; he used to play poker with Jeff. Davis."

The Chicago Tribune has been sued for slander. Damages claimed $5,000.
